GRADUATE STUDENT WORKSHOP

with Dr. Tania Murray Li

Monday, 23 February, 2015
2:00 – 3:30 PM
East-West Center, Burns Hall Room 3015

As part of her scheduled visit to the UH Mānoa campus in February, Professor Li will hold a workshop for graduate students. The workshop will provide an opportunity for students to meet professor Li and discuss her work and their own research and writing as well as topics of shared interest.

Graduate students who plan on attending should do the following:

1. Read, in advance, Professor Li’s recent book Land’s End: Capitalist Relations on an Indigenous Frontier as well as her 2010 article in Current Anthropology, “Indigeneity, capitalism, and the management of dispossession”.

2. Attend one of Professor Li’s public lectures/seminars at UHM.

3. As soon as possible, please send an email to Jonathan Padwe (Anthropology Department), padwe@hawaii.edu
